VOL. 31, NO. 46 — CAMPBELL, SANTA CLARA COUNTY, CALIFORNIA — WED., AUG. 8, 1934

Current Comment

With election drawing near I would like to call your attention to the sterling qualities of Joseph McKinnon, supervisor of the fourth district, who is a candidate to succeed himself.

Besides very capably managing his own district, Mr. McKinnon is a leader on the board, and it is largely through his influence that economies participated in by the entire county have been effected. Voters who seek to dislodge him on the premise that too much money is spent by Santa Clara county do him a grave injustice, as the financial condition of this county—the most satisfactory in the state—will attest.

Do your own district and the whole of Santa Clara county a good turn by re-electing Joseph McKinnon supervisor of the fourth district.

With the same lack of discernment exhibited by a trout that strikes at an artificial fly, the San Jose Mercury-Herald in a recent editorial entitled "Burns Its Bridges," sought to discredit the Congregational and Christian churches because of progressive resolutions passed at their Oberlin national conference.

Said the Mercury-Herald: "The general council of the Congregational and Christian churches at Oberlin swung further to the left than has any other church body. It not only approved state socialism but pledged its efforts to abolish the existing order. Resolutions were passed condemning the profit system based on private ownership as the 'exploitation of one class by another, as the cause of international and industrial wars, unemployment, insecurity, starvation and misery, and as destructive of human values.'

" . . . . . Certainly no one who believes in the present order as one that, on the whole, works more satisfactorily than any other, could be comfortable in a church that renounced the retention of it as a sin."

The wording of the resolution can, as can the wording of most resolutions, be construed to mean anything their critics would have them mean. In the opinion of the Rev. Dr. Harley H. Gill of the Northern California Congregational conference, "It is largely a question of emphasis and interpretation. One can read into these resolutions the wildest kind of radicalism or constructive progressive movement toward a planned economy. There is nothing more radical in this statement than in the speeches of the present members of the President's cabinet; indeed of the President himself. What a 'cooperative social economy, democratically planned' means is largely a question of the mind of the person who reads it or says it. The church did not say that we believe in the elimination of private ownership, except where ownership of the means of production or distribution interferes with the social good."

Dr. Gill's statement should set at rest any lingering doubts as to the aim of the church. As I see it the church is taking the first steps in time with orderly and progressive evolution. I do not believe that the church is "speaking out of turn," as does the eminent Mercury:

"By its action the council has asserted it is the province of the church to enter the economic world and prounounce judgment on its institutions."

Who has a better right? After all, it is sweet charity, largely represented by the churches, that succors the poverty-stricken which 158 years of the "present order" has been unable to eliminate.

In future issues The Press hopes to publish the resolutions of the churches in their entirety. In the meantime, any further comment on the balance of the Mercury's editorial would only involve me in a discussion of Socialism vs. Capitalism. I should uphold the former more ably, I hope, than did the Mercury uphold the "present order."

Charles Crooke Re-Elected to Co. Education Board

Charles R. Crooke, candidate for county superintendent of schools, was recently honored with re-election as president of the county board of education. This is his second consecutive term in the office, although he has held the position four times and has served as a member of the board for nine years.

Crooke, who is widely known throughout the county as an educator and public speaker, has had 18 years' experience in elementary school teaching and administration. He was district superintendent of the Willow Glen schools for ten years. In his work on the county board of education, he has become familiar with the schools of the county and with the problems of the different school districts.

In addition to his educational activities, Crooke has also taken an outstanding part in club and community affairs. He served the San Jose Kiwanis club as president and secretary and was also lieutenant-governor of Kiwanis for the California-Nevada district. He has been a member of the executive council of the Santa Clara County Teachers' association and is past president of the Santa Clara County Schoolmasters' club. He has also taken part in much civic improvement work.

Mr. and Mrs. Elver Bohnett left Monday with their children for a two-weeks' vacation trip along the Redwood highway.

Miss Jean McMahan, who has been visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Knappen for the past week, left from Santa Cruz with friends yesterday morning for her home in Los Angeles.

BEE CAUSE OF AUTO WRECK

Miss Ethel Parker, Ainsley's camp, is suffering from a scalp wound as the result of a minor automobile accident yesterday. Turning off the Bayshore highway at Agnew in a car driven by Richard Walton, also of Ainsley's camp, a bee lit on the driver's hair. Miss Parker struck at the bee, knocking Walton's hair into his eyes.

The next development found the car sideswiping a pillar alongside the road. The side of the car was smashed in, and it was then Miss Parker received the scalp wound. Walton was unhurt.

Big Horse Race Program at State Fair this Year

Sacramento, Aug. 8—Sure shots might have been easy to pick in the past at the California state fair harness races, but not this year.

A three-cornered sectional fight between fields from northern California, southern California, and the middle west, will make the outcome of every one of the trotting and pacing races hang in the balance until the finish line is crossed.

Challenging the California trained speed kings are a group of stars who have just been winning new laurels on the grand circuit in the midwestern states.

No less an authority than W. H. Gocher, secretary of the National Trotting association, has declared that the state fair free for all events have a finer field of entries than could be assembled anywhere in the east, and has assured Secretary-Manager C. W. Paine that a large group of eastern sportsmen and sportswriters will travel across the continent to be present for the excitement.

Training times reported in from a dozen tracks both east and west show amazing preseason speeds and indicate that every trainer is preparing his charges to let go to the limit when they reach Sacramento.

A big spurt in pari-mutuel betting on the harness races will be one result of this tight competition. Winners were too easy to pick last year, and as a result most of the fans preferred to wait for the running of the races before trying their luck.

But this year several of the harness events will outshine the running features, with favorites from each section backed to the limit.

Mrs. Pearl Powers and son Joseph are having a cottage built at Seabright and plan to make their home there.

HERSMAN GETS COPY OF PRUNE SALE MKT. PACT

San Francisco, Aug. 8—A copy of the California Prune Industry Marketing agreement in the form in which it stood last Friday following the conclusion of negotiations in Washington, D. C., between representatives of the industry and officials of the agricultural adjustment administration was received this morning by President Hugh Hersman of the United Prune Growers of California.

Provisions of the agreement received today are substantially the same as the terms of the agreement which was discussed at public hearings held in San Francisco the middle of June under the direction of agricultural adjustment administration officials.

One of the important revisions made in the agreement as a result of the Washington conferences covers the matter of handling off grade prunes.

The revised provision on off grade prunes relates to the percentage of mechantable and off grade prunes to be pooled.

In general the agreement provides that the more off grade prunes, above five per cent of the total tonnage in a grower's delivery, the larger will be the percentage of standard or merchantable fruit which can be sold to packers for cash.

This new provision was included in the agreement in recognition of the unusually large tonnage of off grade fruit which it is expected will be harvested this year.

Besides her husband, Giovanni, retired orchardist, she is survived by her four sons, Louis, Ernest, Joseph and Marino Barbano, all of whom are local orchardists with families of their own, and one daughter, Mrs. T. L. DeBardnardi of Mt. View.

Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Newcomb left last week for Crater lake via the Redwood highway.

DRUNK GETS PROBATION

Disembarking from a San Jose bus here in a drunken condition Friday afternoon, Ed Macelroy, unable to navigate under his own power, was assisted to the county jail by Constable Frank Coupland.

Yesterday morning Macelroy appeared before Justice of the Peace John Blaine and answered to a charge of disturbing the peace. He was sentenced to 30 days in the county bastile, but sentence was suspended on the condition that he watch his behavior more closely in the future.

Would Give Fish-Game Commission Greater Powers

San Francisco, Aug. 8—Going on record as favoring an enlargement of power to the fish and game commission, the affiliated clubs of the Fish and Game Development Association in state council meetings just concluded in Dunsmuir and Los Angeles, unanimously approved a resolution to this effect, according to L. I. Herrington, executive secretary of the association.

"Our member clubs," said Herrington, "have not attempted to say, at this time, whether or not they believe the commission should have one, three, five, seven or more members for the reason they believe that regardless of any change in the size of the commission, no particular improvements may be expected in their operations, unless and until they are given adequate powers. These powers, which we believe to be fundamental, include:

1. Control of funds annually contributed by fishermen and hunters.

2. Control of the Division of Fish and Game without interference by political factors.

3. Control of fish and game regulations governing the taking of various species.

The state council by resilution also went on record as opposed to any division of authority in the administration of the state fish and game resources in National forests or elsewhere within the state, except migratory birds.

"The resolution," said Herrington, "clearly states the council's conviction that, excepting migratory birds, control of our fish and game resources must rest in our state's regularly constituted authorities. Our state authorities, however, are urged to invite such cooperation and aid from the federal government in fish and game matters as will be beneficial to the state and nation."

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Keesling and daughter Margaret returned Sunday from a motor trip which took them as far east as New York. They were accompanied home by their son Cecil, who has spent the past year and a half in the metropolis.

Practical Joker Upsets Family by Triple Death Tale

Last Wednesday George, Leland and Robert Crane, employees at Drew's cannery, were victimized by a practical joker who reported the deaths of their mother, father and brother in an automobile accident in the Sierras.

The Jokster, giving the name of Roberts, purporting to hail from San Jose, stopped a woman on the street here and asked her if she knew a Mrs. Crame on South Fourth street. She said, "I am a Mrs. Crane who lives on South Fourth street, but I don't know of any Mrs. Crame."

Then he told her the story of how the parents and brothers of her own husband and brothers-in-law were killed early the preceding morning when their car went off the grade in the Sierras. Roberts was at the scene of the accident when it occurred, he asserted.

The stranger's story tallied with the exact facts regarding the family and it was unmistakable, Mrs. Crane said, that the persons in the accident were her own relatives.

Hysterical, she told the story to the remainder of the family. They hurried to the Drew plant to inform the brothers working there, and all of them rushed to Niles, the family home. The family was gone! They checked and found that the father, mother and brother were just preparing to leave their temporary home near the Nevada line to end a vacation and return home, and that all were well.

Sanborn Young to Speak, Narcotics

"The Illicit Drug Traffic" will be his topic when former Senator Sanborn Young of Los Gatos addresses a gathering at the Congregational church Sunday evening at 7:45. His talk will be illustrated. Mr. Young is one of the foremost authorities on this subject in the United States, and his remarks will without doubt be intensely interesting.

At 11 o'clock the Rev. J. H. Bennett will preach, and will also have a brief talk for the children. Sunday school takes up at 10 o'clock.

The college group, C. E., plans to hold their meeting at Santa Cruz next Sunday, leaving Campbell at 1:30 p. m. This is the only time available for a united group gathering, and will honor those leaving this year for other places and work.

Mrs. H. C. Smith will be confined to her home on North Second street for some time, due to a dislocated and otherwise injured ankle. The injury was sustained Monday morning when Mrs. Smith fell from a kitchen stepladder. Dr. W. I. Merrill is in attendance.

The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

Marked improvement in the farm outlook, both nationally and in California, is reflected in two shafts of economic sunshine reported by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The federal department finds that farm real estate taxes, computed on a per-acre basis, decreased an average of 13 per cent from 1932 to 1933 in 16 states (including California) which came under its survey.

And hand in hand with the drop in taxes, the federal agency reports a small increase in farm real estate values—a jump of approximately three per cent in the country as a whole.

In California, according to the survey, land values have climbed back to 97 per cent of pre-war (1912-14) values.

In California, also, the farm tax burden, due to the savings accomplished under the Riley-Stewart tax relief plan, has been reduced this year from 20 to 40 per cent, varying according to areas and local conditions.

If it has done nothing else, the depression has taught California and the nation a vital lesson in taxation.

It has demonstrated, beyond contravention, that excessive taxation defeats its own purpose—destroying the tax source, instead of increasing returns.

And it has also demonstrated that with relief from exorbitant taxation there is an immediate upturn in land and property values—a gain in taxable wealth!

The tax lesson of the depression, clearly written, is that higher rates—when they pass the point of ability to pay—mean fewer dollars in tax returns. California legislators will do well to remember this fact when they seek means of meeting the state deficit next January.

The gain in farm land values is the first to be recorded for the country as a whole since 1920 and is attributed by the United States Bureau of Agricultural Economics to the following factors:

1. Cessation of the decline in farm incomes and substantial increases in farm returns in some sections.

2. Improved credit facilities, tending to remove the pressure of forced liquidation.

3. Lowering of taxes on farm real estate, together with the easing of tax penalties, and time extension programs to permit hard pressed farmers to catch up with their tax payments.

Drawing a distinction between seeming tax reductions and actual tax relief, however, the federal bureau makes this analysis of farm tax trends since the start of the depression:

"Although farm taxes per acre declined 22 per cent in the period from 1929 to 1932, the actual tax burden of farmers rose sharply, because both the farm land values against which these taxes were levied and the incomes of farmers fell more rapidly than did taxes. For the United States, farm real estate values fell 37 per cent between the payment of the farmers' 1929 and their 1932 taxes. Thus taxes in relation to land values increased by about a quarter from 1929 to 1932. In relation to gross farm income, farm taxes nearly doubled during the same period.

"Tax payments decreased in relation to land values from 1932 to 1933 for the first time since 1918-19. Farm real estate values increased four per cent for the nation as a whole between March 1, 1933 and March 1, 1934. Farm prices of the things farmers sell rose about 11 per cent between the annual averages for 1932 and 1933."

P G & E to Show At State Fair

The Pacific Gas and Electric company's farm electrification exhibit at the California state fair next month will again be a modern science display feature of unusual instructive quality.

This exhibit was established at the state fair in 1931 as an aid to agricultural sales. It proved so successful in arousing interest on the part of visiting agriculturists that it was decided to continue it as an annual event. It consists of a group of permanent buildings representing a modern farm, with home, barns and outbuildings, in which are displayed all modern devices applicable to the use of electricity in agricultural pursuits. In the home there is a model electric kitchen, with all the modern domestic appliances on view, such as refrigerator, range, dishwasher, ironer, etc. A new feature this year will be an air conditioning apparatus, an invention which was first applied to office building, but which is now being constructed on a smaller scale for the home and seems destined to achieve a great popularity among residents of the interior valleys where seasonal extremes of temperature are found.

There is a poultry exhibit, where electric incubators and brooders are shown, also feed grinders and violet ray lamps whose scientific value in building up baby chickens has been successfully demonstrated. There will be shown also apparatus for heating drinking water for chickens; it is found that this enables them to lay better in winter time.

The dairy exhibit will, as usual, include milking machines. Real cows are brought in to assist in demonstrating. Other features of the dairy equipment include feed grinders and mixers, electric milk cookers, sterilizers, etc.

Another experimental feature that never fails to arouse interest is electric soil heating. It is found that application of electric heat to soil while raising its temperature stimulates plant growth. For the purpose of demonstration a green-house has been specially constructed.

Additional equipment is constantly being gathered for various parts of the exhibit. Permanent improvements have been made in the way of lawns, trees and shrubs, and every year the exhibit is reopened on a bigger and better scale than before.

Girls' Camp At Big Basin Opens

Sanctioned by camp physicians, Camp Wastahi, Camp Fire Girls' camp at Big Basin, will open Aug. 12 for a period of two weeks. All girls, whether members of the organization or not, are eligible to attend.

Directing the camp will be Mrs. Edna Sefton, local Camp Fire executive, who is taking reservations at the San Jose city hall. Mrs. Sefton will be assisted at camp by Miss Philoma Goldsworthy. Dr. W. I. Merrill is chairman of the camp committee.

An interesting program has been planned for the two weeks at camp and will include swimming, puppetry, hiking, outdoor cooking, trail blazing, handcraft, pottery, star gazing and nature lore.

Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Bohnett and sons Joseph, Tom, Newell and Bill, recently returned from a week's vacation in Reno and northern California.

Winfield Archibald recently attended the young people's council at Asilomar.

KIWANIS NOTES

Tuesday's luncheon meeting was addressed by State Traffic Officer John Sansone, who stated that excessive speed is the cause of four-fifths of all automobile accidents. Second to speeding in cause of accidents is inattention to the road.

All accidents are caused by two per cent of the drivers, asserted Sansone, who said that the loss incurred in automobile accidents is sufficient to pay the national education bill. Thirty-four thousand people are killed annually in the United States by automobiles, with the staggering total of 66,000 injured. California is well at the top of the list with 3,000 killed annually, and 25,000 injured.

It was announced that R. H. Hyde, having lost a golf match to W. N. Lloyd, will next Tuesday evening be host to the entire club at an Italian dinner in San Jose. Mr. Lloyd will be chairman of the evening.

This evening the local club will be guests of the Greater Santa Clara club.

Bean Salads

YOU'RE missing a bet if you don't serve bean salads. Cold canned stringless beans with French dressing make one of the simplest and most appetizing salads you can serve, but they can be served with other dressings, and in combination with other vegetables. They make a delicious salad, for instance, served in the following way:

Stringless Bean Salad with Roquefort Dressing: Drain one cup of canned stringless beans, chill thoroughly and arrange in six lettuce leaves. Combine one-third cup salad oil, two tablespoons vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt and one-eighth teaspoon pepper, and shake or beat until well emulsified. Mash half a wedge of Roquefort cheese, and add the oil and vinegar slowly, stirring until very smooth. Pour over the salad. Serves six, and costs, incidentally, less than thirty-five cents.

With Other Vegetables

Lima Bean and Tomato Salad: Dip two large tomatoes in boiling water, then in cold. Remove skins. Chill, cut in halves, and place one half in each of four lettuce leaves. Combine half the contents of a No. 2 can lima beans, one small minced onion, four tablespoons chopped celery and salt and pepper to taste. Moisten with four tablespoons mayonnaise, and pile on top of the tomato halves. Serves four, and costs only a quarter.

Beet and Bean Salad: Drain well one cup of canned diced beets and half the contents of a 10½-ounce can stringless beans, and add three tablespoons chopped sweet pickle. Add three tablespoons French dressing, and marinate for half an hour. Mix in six tablespoons mayonnaise, and serve on lettuce. Serves six, and costs less than thirty-five cents.*

Lloyd K. Wood, New Principal, Arrives In Town

Last Wednesday Lloyd K. Wood, Campbell's new high school principal, formerly at Galt, together with Mrs. Wood and their children, Patricia Ann and Maurice, moved to their new home at 270 West Campbell avenue.

Mr. Wood reports an enjoyable summer in the south, where he was enrolled in courses at both the University of Southern California and the University of California, southern branch.

The new principal's first official gesture was attendance Wednesday evening at a board meeting and public hearing on the proposed budget for the ensuing school year.

Dry Creek Road Will be Paved

A hitherto enjoyable but dusty ride will soon become only enjoyable. Dry Creek road, one of the most satisfying "trails" hereabouts, is to be paved with a macadam surface 18 feet wide. The work is being done by Leo Piazzi, who moved his equipment to the scene of operations last week.

The A. J. Raisch company is at work laying the same kind of surface on Payne avenue between San Tomas and Saratoga avenue, and on Williams road.

Miss Betty Ann Bachman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bachman, is convalescing at her home after a recent operation for appendicitis.

Herold Morton of the Campbell lumber company last week completed and took to the coast a modernized version of an Eskimo kiyak. He and his sons plan to use it in the surf at Capitola.

Quarter Billion Dollars Loaned In West States

Reno, Aug. 8—W. I. Myers, governor of the farm credit administration, speaking before the western regional conference of the American Farm Bureau Federation here, said that under the farm credit administration approximately one quarter of a billion dollars had been advanced to farmers and stockmen in the nine western and Pacific states represented at the conference. These states include Washington, California, Nevada, Utah, Wyoming, Montana, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico.

According to Governor Myers, the total amount loaned by the federal land banks and the land bank commissioner on the security of farm property in the nine states during the past year was $110,000,000. He also pointed out that the land banks and commissioner now hold from 20 to 35 per cent of the total farm mortgage indebtedness in the various western and Pacific states.

The 12 federal land banks, which comprise the farm mortgage system, now have loans outstanding throughout the United States of more than $2,000,000,000, including the loans made for the land bank commissioner. Half of this amount has been advanced in the year since the farm credit administration was organized. In addition, the land banks and the commissioner have made commitments to lend two-thirds of a billion dollars more. This will bring their holding to about a third of the total farm mortgage indebtedness of the United States.

"Borrowers from this system not only have been refinanced," Governor Myers stated, "and relieved of the uncertainty of securing new loans when their short-term obligations fell due, but they have been refinanced for a long period, eliminating periodic commissions. Moreover, the interest rates on these loans are much lower than those previously paid by borrowers in this section and this will mean a saving for farmers amounting to many millions of dollars each year."

Governor Myers stressed the fact that the money loaned by the farm credit administration is obtained from the sale of securities to investors and not from appropriated funds. He complimented farmers as a group for their integrity and their desire to repay loans and meet their bills promptly, and said that continued use of good credit practices on the part of farmers and stockmen would assure an adequate flow of investment funds into agricultural credit channels.

Campbell Pack. Corp. Takes Out Pear Machines

Last week Drew Canning company removed the pear machines with which the season was started, and turned the work back to women. Other local canners followed suit insofar as turning the job over to women, as in the past, and this week finds the machines gone from the floor at the Campbell Packing corporation. Pear machines remain on the floor at the Dempsey-Callon plant, but the work is being done by women. They are canning only pears at the present.

Yesterday saw the finish of a 10,000-case pack of nectarines at the Campbell Packing corporation. The plant immediately went on pears and took on about 50 additional workers.

The Drew plant, which has been working two shifts all season, Sunday used a skeleton crew on a short shift to take care of fruit which was ripening too fast. Since peaches started at this plant both men and women have been employed in the operation of the new peach machines which cut and pit the fruit.

Boy Scout activities will be resumed here Thursday evening, according to Scoutmaster Bennett. Aug. 31 has been tentatively set for the postponed entertainment which was to have benefitted the boys' camp. The annual encampment, too, is hoped to be held before school opens this fall.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Moorland were recent guests at a mountain ranch near Truckee.
